I just, just want peace in life
I told myself Scattered parts of me was killing me from inside as the pieces of broken glass And the stream of confidence started to flow
When it reached to the boundaries of my patience the volcano of my frustrations burstled,
The roar of that lava jolted the earth of my discipline
When this all mess malted into the river of Life and ended to the dry sea of my tears
I felt nothing, nothing positive I felt numb and deaf even where palpitations of my frightened heart could be felt And I looked around to get the support to step forward
But in that desert of the lies and fraud all I found was thorns
